COTTON POLICY. There are two requisites that should not be lost sight of in that portion of the Union known as the cotton belt-one in the cities, to establish cotton factories, with a view to tariff laws as will facilitate the exportation should grow their own supplies-not cotton alone-in this way the money for the feeding of the grow food-at home policy. The Darwill turn their attention more to such crops as will enable them to live within them-

In three of these, for repeating, for interfering with a Republican meeting, and for conspiring to interfere with a Republican meeting, the grand jury found "no bill," Three other cases in which the prisoners were charged with repeating, assaulting a supervisor and hindering a deputy marshal, were continued. Two cases were brought to trial; in one there was a verdict of acquittal on the charge of repeating; in the other, where the prisoners were charged with violating the election laws, the jury disagreed, only one member being for conviction. In five other cases the proceedings were by information. Two, for obstructing Federal officials, were continued; in a third, where the prisoners whom the jury had failed to convict or acquit were again arraigned, the new jury brought in a verdict of officers of election were charged with viola tions of law, the juries disagreed, the majority for acquittal, in one instance, being of nine jurors, and in the other eight. This is not heresay and gossip, such as Mr. Blaine has the audacity to rest a case on before the United States senate, but evidence extracted to a limited number of pupils, at her residence, No 93 Madison street. Applications can be made to her at once, as above. from the court registers, and not the less valuable because it doesn't bear out the alleged case of the alleged honorable senator ## from Maine. YOUTHFUL CRIMINALS.

The alarming increase in the number of youthful criminals in every part of the country, shows that there is an absolute necessity for devising and enforcing such measures as will prevent this increase of crime. In all large cities there are frequently recurring cases like the one which the editor of the New Jersey Herald describes as having Study. For terms, apply to transpired in Philadelphia. A boy ten years of age was arraigned on the charge of lar ceny and pleaded guilty. He was an errand boy in a store and had stolen various articles to the amount, in value, of forty dollars selling them to a woman at much less than their worth. It being the first offense, the judge was disposed to discharge him in case any one would look after him in the future. The boy said his parents were living, but his father had deserted his mother and gone west. The mother was sent for, but when wm. MESSICK. she came into court she refused to go to her son, saying he (a boy ten years of age) had disgraced the family and she wouldn't have anything more to do with him. It transpired that the husband had en deavored to get the wife to accompany him west, and she refused. So he went alone, and had provided no support for her or his family since. Upon such parents, then, this little boy had to rely to care for and lead him in the ways of honesty. Was it any wonder that, in the midst of temptation, with no warning voice to guide him, he should fall? The judge, it would seem, had more humanity for the little unfortunate than had the mother. The boy wept bitterly when hi mother turned her back upon him, and falling on his knees cried, "Oh, mamma, mamma, take me home and try me once more.' left her child to the mercy of the court. This is a hard story, but there are almost exactly similar ones daily occurring in all our large thing could be supposed to be possible There are cases where intemperate and other wise unworthy parents actually subsist upon the petty pilfering they oblige their children to do. Then what is to be done with this class of children? Manifeely, though they sin against the law, yet they probably do not do it of their own free will. But, if they are allowed to go on, experience feaches us that there will be but one result-namely, their becoming hardened criminals and the avowed enemies of society. If this be the result, then certainly it must be | NEW ORLEANS, : : : : : LOUISIANA admitted that in dealing with this class our authorities have a high duty to perform, and one which is of the greatest interest to the community at large. Considered on a strictly commercial basis--one of dollars and centsit would be much cheaper in the end for the State to take charge of such children now, and by reforming and educating them, to turn them into worthy citizens, than to let them go along, correcting them wently for them go along, correcting them gently for each offense, and in the end making them a | Coaches, source of expense to the community liwhom they pilfer, and to the State who has to con-nals into some industrial and educational initution, and there prepare them for pursuing an honest livelihood. In the reforms which are continually being proposed in this country, we suggest that this subject demands careful and immediate consideration.

INTELLIGENCE WILL BULE. The position taken by S-nator Thurman in se recent debate in the United States senate, that intelligence and the men who owned the property of the country would control lections, is indorsed by the American peole. The idea that the illiterate and impeunious negroes should control and govern he educated wealth of the south, is proosterous. If ignorance is to control, intelligence is a curse. Woe to the country where ragamuffins, tatterdemalions and the ignoant non-property holding majority can secure possession of the government. Then we will have communism, the rule of the nob, and anarchy will be the result. The New York Nation says "that a proposal to and over the government of Massachusetts. or instance, to such a body of persons as the najority of Mississippi or South Carolina, would fill all the present voters of that State with consternation, and if urged vehemently rom the outside, as an excellent thing to do, would be fiercely resented. Even the short step in that direction lately taken by Butler oused the fear and indignation of the best portion of the community."
